

Certified Technical Training Course for Infonic Document Manager 2008

Thank you for your interest in the Infonic Training Courses. The details of the Technical Training Course for Infonic Document Manager 2008 are given below. Should you have any further enquiries regarding the courses, please contact us via our email address: Training@infonic.com or by phoning us.

Target Audience

This is an essential course for System Administrators and IT staff who want to install Infonic Document Manager 2008 and its related modules. Students will also learn about the back-end storage of documents. These administrative aspects of the Infonic Document Manager 2008 product help increase productivity and save your company time and money.

Prerequisites

To maximise your learning experience, interested students should have the following prerequisites:

- A working knowledge of installing SQL Server for Microsoft® Windows® 2000.
- A working knowledge of Windows® workstations and servers.
- Completion of the Certified Document Manager Standard Course.

Course Duration: 3-days (24 hours)

Day 1 of the Technical Training Course for Infonic Document Manager 2008 covers the installation and configuration of Infonic Document Manager 2008.

Day 2 covers the installation and configuration of TokAlerter, Full Text Searching and much more.

Day 3 covers business case scenarios. Delegates will be given a business case and they will be asked to scope it, install and set up the system and then give a demonstration. There will also be a multiple choice exam.

This predominantly hands-on course provides a thorough understanding of how to implement document management into your organisation. Material is divided into units and it is interactive in nature so that you complete a series of tasks and 'Unit Review' tests.

All delegates receive a certificate of attendance.

At class completion
